LEADERSHIP CIRCLE®

BANK SURVEY CASE

Your friend and network partner Dave says, “It is an old institution with a long history, they have been in business here, since they started collecting funds for ships crossing the Atlantic. A jewel from better times right here in London”.

He tells you that he just started working with this new client. He proposed a Collective Leadership Assessment for the top team and asks you to look at the data. “You know, it is the first time I am doing this. I love working with individuals. Now, with the team, it gets more complex. So, I thought sharing perspectives would be great!”

The private bank has been family owned for seven generations. Dave met the CEO twice. He is full of stories from these conversations, so it is not easy to keep him on track. It sounds like Dave has created a good relationship with the CEO and they share a passion for history.

The CFO came in three years ago. He brings a lot of experience from previous jobs in London. Dave is wondering if the small family bank is too much like “a pair of shoes that are too tight for him” after working for much larger financial institutions. He explains, however, that he enjoys applying everything he learned in his previous jobs. One experience he brings is the Leadership Circle Profile. He recalled the instrument being helpful in a company he worked for before, and so his small HR team searched for a coach with experience using the 360 instrument and brought Dave in.

The first time he spoke with HR, he realized the leadership had problems with each other. The HR manager stated, “It would be helpful if you could give them your point of view, they could use someone from the outside looking in; to see how the team is doing.”

Dave took the time to have a conversation with each member of the executive team. The Head of Risk appears quite critical, but unspecific. There seems to be a conflict between him and the Head of Operations. “It sounds like the Head of Operations is the biggest risk for the bank. You know it is a family-run institute; it is not about your performance,” Dave cites the Head of Risk with a teaching tone.

There are other family members on the team and Dave mentions their introverted style. Private customers are handled by one, and corporate customers by the other. The newest change to the company is “New IT” where they do early-stage experiments with start-ups about new apps reaching out to customers.

You ask about diversity in the team, Dave mentions that the “Head of Corporate Customers” and the “New IT” are female family members, while the rest of the team are male. Most team members are between the ages of 50 and 60, while the “Head of Operations” and the “Head of New IT” are in their early 40s.

You ask Dave about the business challenges, and he says, “They survived the financial crises, but it took every buffer they had. The CFO mentioned that they need to be faster and may take on some more risk, and the CEO says the most important project is to leave the bank in the hands of the next generation while staying on a successful road.”

“I believe they need to see themselves as a team, with the CLA I hope to give them a mirror to see the collective impact they have.”

Dave then asks you, “What do you see in the data?”

LEARNING TOGETHER:

- Practice the debrief.
- Understand and explain the data.

A TEACHING POINT:

The bank survey will allow you to explore the data and identify key items to guide the collective to achieve their desired results. The data alone is not enough. Your client needs you to utilize your expertise and present the data in a manner that is relevant and unique to them.

While each column of the report can bring some value, the data itself is not the meaning. The meaning needs to be generated by you and the client together. For this it needs your willingness to engage with them, ask questions, and explore as you absorb the data and get curious about what the meaning is and how it best meets your client's needs.

Over the next few pages, you will begin to understand your client, recognize their needs and customize solutions using the CLA.

THE CREATIVE LEADERSHIP COMPETENCIES

measure key leadership behaviors and internal assumptions that lead to a high fulfillment, high achievement organizational culture.

The Relating Dimension

measures the extent to which leaders in your organization relate to others in a way that brings out the best in people, groups and organizations. It measures how well the collective leadership of the organization builds quality relationships, fosters teamwork, collaborates, develops people, involves people in decision making and planning, and demonstrates a high level of interpersonal skill.

The Self-Awareness Dimension

measures leadership's orientation to ongoing professional and personal development, as well as the degree to which inner self-awareness is expressed through high integrity leadership. It is a measure of emotional and interpersonal maturity. It also measures the extent to which leadership encourages the kind of personal/professional development that results in personal mastery.

The Authenticity Dimension

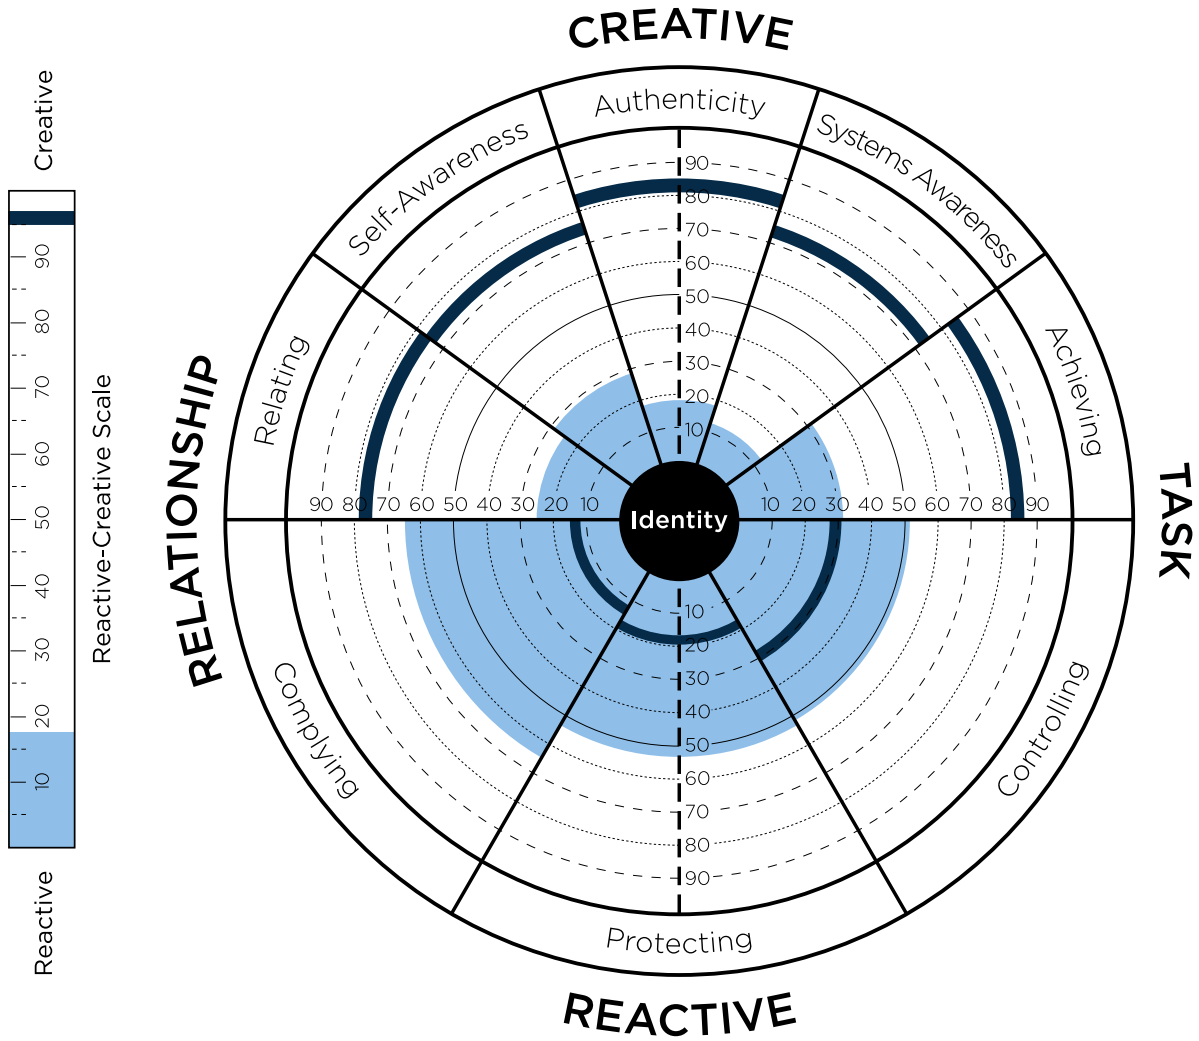

measures your leaders' capability to relate to others in an authentic, courageous, and high integrity manner. It measures the extent to which their leadership is authentic—not masked by organizational politics, looking good, winning approval, etc. It also measures their ability to take tough stands, bring up the un-discussibles (risky issues the group avoids discussing), to openly deal with relationship problems, and share personal feelings/vulnerabilities about a situation. Courage in the workplace involves authentically and directly dealing with risky issues in one-to-one and group situations.

The Systems Awareness Dimension

measures the degree to which your leaders' awareness is focused on whole system improvement and on community welfare (the symbiotic relationship between the long-term welfare of the community and the interests of the organization).

The Achieving Dimension

measures the extent to which leaders offer visionary, authentic, and high achievement leadership. It measures the extent to which leaders encourage a focus on achieving end results that are at once purposeful and strategic. It measures the creative use of power and effective decision-making.

COLLECTIVE LEADERSHIP ASSESSMENT

PERCENTILE SCORES:

All scores are displayed as percentile scores comparing your scores to our norm base. High scores are beyond the 67th percentile. Low scores are below the 33rd percentile.

- Desired Leadership
- Actual Leadership

COLLECTIVE LEADERSHIP ASSESSMENT

Bank Survey

- Desired Leadership
- Actual Leadership

PERCENTILE SCORES:

High:
Scores from the 66th to the 100th percentile are strong scores.

Medium:
Scores between the 66th and the 33rd percentile show a mix of strength and areas of improvement.

Low:
Scores below the 33rd percentile are low scores.

THE REACTIVE LEADERSHIP STYLES

measure ways of leading that have significant strengths associated with them, but also reflect inner beliefs and behaviors that limit effectiveness, authentic expression, and empowering leadership.

The Controlling Dimension

measures the extent to which leaders establish a sense of personal worth through task accomplishment and personal achievement. It measures the extent to which leaders push themselves and others hard and use overly driven and aggressive tactics to get others to do what they want.

The Protecting Dimension

measures how leaders act to protect themselves and establish a sense of worth/security by emotionally withdrawing and remaining distant, hidden, aloof, cynical, superior, and/or rational. This stance is often intellectually bright, but overly critical and cold.

The Complying Dimension

measures the extent that leaders act in ways that are overly conservative, cautious, and/or polite. It measures the extent to which leaders get a sense of self-worth and security by complying with the expectations of others rather than acting on what they intend and want.

THE SUMMARY MEASURES

bring everything together. They summarize the above into two useful measures.

Reactive-Creative Scale

reflects the degree of balance between the reactive dimensions and the creative dimensions. The percentile score here gives you a sense of how your collective leadership compares to that of other organizations. It measures the amount of energy your organization puts into reactive versus creative behavior. It suggests the degree to which your leadership, relationships, and goal-oriented behaviors are coming out of a reactive or creative orientation. It also suggests the degree to which leaders self-concepts and inner motivations come from within or are determined by external expectations, rules, or conditions.

Relationship-Task Balance

measures the degree of balance your organization shows between the achievement competencies and the relationship competencies. It is a measure of the over, under, or balanced development of either half of the equation (the people half or the task half) that makes for great leadership. Good balance results in high percentile scores.
